How to handle your countertop

- 1 Lift the counter (using two people for counters 50" or larger) from the front side, leaving the back side on the bottom of the box. Bring to a vertical position

- 2 Remove counter from the box while maintaining its vertical position. It is acceptable to use the sink openings as grasp locations, but highly preferable to also support it from the bottom. The vertical position must be maintained during the entire moving process.

Countertop & sink installation

Countertops should be handled with extreme caution & should always be lifted vertically and be maintained in a vertical position while lifting, never lift or carry your countertop in a flat position refer to: How to handle your countertop - page 1. Determine what type of sink(s) you have & proceed to the installation process.

Under-mount sink/counter installation

Please note: If your countertop arrived with pre-assembled sink please skip to Step 7.

1. Safely remove the packaging from your countertop and place it on a flat surface facing down. If your countertop is made of marble/natural stone, make sure to place it on an evenly flat surface to avoid any movements.
2. Remove the sink from its packaging box. Identify the front and bottom portion of the sink(s).
3. Using silicone sealant, apply a liberal amount around the perimeter of the pre-cut sink hole.
4. Place the sinks upside down on the area where the sealant was utilized. Apply moderate pressure to secure sink in place. DO NOT apply excessive weight.
5. Using a cloth, remove any excess sealant around the area.
6. Refer to your silicone sealant instructions and recommendations on curing time.
7. Once the sealant has properly cured, remove the double-sided tape strip that is located on top of the base cabinet. Lift the countertop in a vertical position & carefully place on top of the vanity cabinet. It is best to align your countertop with your cabinet base from back to front. We recommend acquiring help to lift & place countertop to avoid any potential breakage that may occur during installation. Damages incurred during the installation process are not covered under warranty.
