The niche in any room that calls for a compact luminary will be asking for the Annelore table lamp by name. The block of white marble that composes its square body is made to feel nimbler thanks to the stacked plates of metal above and the single-slab base below it. These elements, along with the tall metal finial, have been treated to an antique brass finish, which contrasts the marble and the white linen shade. The Annelore's petite size measures 8" square by 16.5" tall. The Mairin is the same design in black marble with satin nickel metal.
