

ANDREA HILLEBRAND

Andrea Hillebrand has been combining her love of window displays, great design and architecture over the last several years to form a body of interpretive work called Worlds Within Worlds—magical, surreal and abstract imagery from her travels to many cities in the world. The images are not layered but rather reflections from the architectural elements of the street back into the window displays of some of the most talented and inspiring designers in the world.

“Unexpected surprises often occur during the editing process of my images. When the beauty of something serendipitously captured is revealed, I discover I have created a world within a world. Objects and shapes are transformed, the original forms of figures are transcended, and everything is reinterpreted by the viewer, sparking new thought, memories of an experience, or further reflections.”
