Audo Copenhagen adds to the TR Bulb Collection.

Expanding on the original TR Bulb Collection of ceiling, wall and pendant lights, the TR Bulb Suspended Wall Lamp is the latest addition to Tim Rundle's series for Audo.

The TR Bulb is a testament to the designer's focus on simplicity and functionality, offering versatile lighting solutions for both residential and professional spaces. The innovative design allows the bulb to be installed into pendant sockets, making it ideal for those who move frequently or enjoy rearranging their interiors.

The new TR Bulb Suspended Wall Lamp maintains the series' elegant aesthetic with its opal glass bulb and geometric fixture. The bulb is elegantly suspended from a brushed brass arm, creating a striking interplay of straight lines and round shapes. The dimmable LED emits an even, glare-free glow, controlled via a dial on the wall-mounted backplate. Although equipped with a cord, the lamp can also be hardwired for a seamless installation.

Tim Rundle's dedication to creating engaging and relevant designs with a deep understanding of materials and manufacturing results in a lighting design that enhances the atmosphere of any space without overpowering it.

About the Designer

Tim Rundle's eponymous London-based industrial design practice specialises in product design, interiors and consultancy. Here, he turns highly technical ideas into simplified, useful forms, improving the manufactured environment through elegant, technically refined solutions. Prior to setting up his own studio in 2015, Tim was Design Director at Conran and Partners, the multidisciplinary design studio founded by Sir Terence Conran. In addition to running his studio, he also teaches at Platform 23 – Design for Manufacture under the Design Products Master's programme at the prestigious Royal College of Art.
